Dear Parents and Carers,

Your children are growing up digital and there are many ways to support and protect them.

There are practical ways by setting up filters and parental controls, this site has a comprehensive range of how to do this across a variety of suppliers: <https://www.internetmatters.org/parental-controls/interactive-guide/>

If your children have mobile phones, have you capped the amount that they can spend on their mobile phone? Going over budget on mobile phones can cause stress and upset between parents and children, capping limits will avoid unnecessary tension.

Have you heard of You Tube Kids? It is a downloadable app where you can set the home screen age level to: All kids, Pre-school or school age. It is worth having a look at this review video to find out more: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gtjXhK4_Mxo&t=379s

Do you talk to your children about what they do online?

- Do your children have You Tube accounts? To have your own You Tube channel the terms and conditions state you have to be 18. They can have an account at 13 but parental permission is required. Does make you think about the content they are watching? Please check.
- What games does your child play? Please check the PEGI ratings of all games to be sure that your child is not watching anything that can really upset them and cause anxiety and sleepless nights.
- Do you talk about new apps that become available? This app—SimSimi has been blocked temporarily in Ireland as parents were very worried about its potential use for Cyber-bullying.

INTERNET SAFETY

SNAPCHAT

Please check whether your child has the latest update of Snapchat. This enables their 'friends' to see their exact location and is therefore very dangerous. To disable it you need to go into settings- snapchatlocation and then choose 'never'.

INSTAGRAM

We have been made aware that there is a new webpage attached to Instagram that allows you to tell other children's secrets. It is called 'Yoursecretisout'. Children are using it to shame other children on the site, with some allegations also being made. Please note that if any of our pupils are using this to target another pupil/ pupils, this will be regarded as a form of bullying. If anyone has already been a target of this, please come forward and we will support you.
